

SUPPORT OF WOMEN FOR MISS MATHEWS

Mrs. Whitehouse Makes First Speech Since Political Retirement 2 Years Ago.

NEW REGISTER ADVISED

Political Reputation of Sex Stands on Her Record, Say Speakers at Luncheon.

Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, who withdrew from public life two years ago, reappeared yesterday with a message for women in public office. She delivered her "little sermon to women" as Miss Mary Garrett Hay, president of the Women's City Club, called it, to 200 members of the club and their friends at a luncheon at the McAlpin Hotel. Her text was that if Miss Annie Mathews, the first woman Register elected to office in this State, does not make good then all her sex will be considered failures politically.

Miss Mathews, who is a member of the Women's City Club, a non-partisan organization, was the principal guest. She asserted she is determined to make good for the sake of herself and all women.

"Women Stand Together," said my message is commonplace," said Mrs. Whitehouse, the former State leader for suffrage, "but I want to remind you that wherever we go as women we are never standing quite on our own individual feet, and if one woman in a prominent office fails, then all women are considered failures. It is the same with success, only a success has to be a great success if it is to receive recognition."

"When Miss Mathews goes into office, or when any woman undertakes a piece of public work, we women ought to stand by her, help her in a constructive way and make her feel our loyalty to her. We must make her realize that she has back of her a good, solid and substantial body of women of all political parties and that she can always count on their support."

Miss Mathews said she realized she had to make a success of her office because others of her sex would be judged by her personal record.

"The office of County Register will not give me a chance to do anything spectacular, so don't expect that of me," she continued. "I think it's a good thing for the boss to be around, and that's going to be a boss as that name is generally understood."

"One of the problems I shall have to meet is that of the employer and the employee. There already exists a good spirit in the Register's office, and if I cannot continue to uphold that spirit then I shall be a failure."

Against Campaign Abuse.

Miss Mathews made a plea for the limitation of abuse of candidates in campaigns, saying women could do a great deal in helping to stop it by standing for cleaner politics. She invited the women to visit her office and study its activities.

Dr. Katharine B. Davis, the first woman to head the Department of Correction, an appointive office, warned Miss Mathews that she would have to make some concessions to men if she hoped to get on pleasantly with them. "To be a good city official is practically the same thing for a woman as for a man," she said. "We need the quality of idealism in the city government, and I think women can be relied on to contribute that. But if women are merely going to double the vote of the political parties then it wasn't worth while to have fought and bled and died for suffrage."

'SPOT' LEAHY AGAIN CAUGHT IN ASSAULT

This Time He Tries to Break Man's Skull With Bar of Solder.

ABUSED EVELYN NESBIT

Although Sentenced to Six Months for That Affair He Enjoyed Liberty.

It annoys Joseph Leahy, otherwise known as "Spot," 24 years old, of 44 Amsterdam avenue, to have his automobile blocked by another, even accidentally. "Spot," the police charge, became annoyed from this cause yesterday in Forty-seventh street near Sixth avenue, and when Detective McCaddin and four other police chased along "Spot" was showing his annoyance by beating Vincent Trapani of 311 Pleasant avenue on the head with a bar of solder, while two of Leahy's friends held the victim's arms.

This performance was not so astonishing to the police, they say, as Leahy's presence, as they supposed he was serving a six months' work house sentence for a recent attack on Evelyn Nesbit.

When the police appeared, "Spot" and his two friends stopped assaulting Trapani and ran. Leahy whirled around the corner, with Detective McCaddin in pursuit, and ran up the L stairs at Sixth avenue and Fifty-eighth street, where he ran through the station, out to the platform, and made for a coal box, into which he dived. When McCaddin hauled him out the detective said Leahy fought hard, but was subdued. The other detectives captured two men who said they were David Haas of 556 West 181st street, and James Cunliff of 772 Ninth avenue.

The detectives found Trapani, who had dropped to the sidewalk unconscious, reviving when they got back with their prisoners. He had two bumps on his head, but refused medical aid. As the station house, where he charged all three prisoners with felonious assault, he said they had pulled him out of his car when his engine stalled.

In Leahy's car, the police say, they found license plates of two automobiles that had been reported stolen, so they placed a charge of grand larceny against the three men also. Leahy was sent to the workhouse early in September when Miss Nesbit asserted he and others entered her room and handled her roughly. She broke away from them and reached the street. He told the police he was out on appeal. A year ago, Leahy was arrested for possession of a revolver at the time of the murder of "Red" Murray, a gangster, and is still held in $2,000 bail on this charge, which has not been brought to trial.
